Table 1 summarizes the general, the three-part, and the two-part models. All three models are based on the assumption that the observed count y_i is a realization of a random variable y_i that follows a Poisson distribution with mean μ_i . The three-part model is a special case of the two-part model where the probability of a zero count is modeled separately from the mean of the distribution.

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) has announced that it will be reviewing the effectiveness of the current federal health care regulations and will be considering whether to revise them. The review will be conducted by a panel of experts, including representatives from the private sector, academia, and the public health community. The panel will be led by Dr. David A. Asch, a professor of medicine and director of the Center for Health Systems Research and Analysis at the University of Michigan. The panel will be charged with identifying areas where the regulations may be outdated or inefficient and recommending ways to improve them. The review is part of HHS's ongoing effort to streamline and modernize the federal health care system.

Stalemate: Senators quit talks on VAT

By Juliet Labog-Jarellana

SENATORS on the bicameral congressional panel yesterday suspended talks on the value-added tax reform bill and decided to stick with their position to leave the VAT at 10 percent, leaving no hope that the key measure would pass before the April 30 deadline set by Senate President Franklin Drilon.

But in a rare move inviting presidential intervention, Sen. Ralph Recto openly proposed writing "standby authority" for the President into the VAT law so she could raise the rate to 12 percent and break the stalemate with the House which passed a bill hiking the VAT to 12 percent.

Recto said the Senate panel has no plans of meeting again until a compromise is found.

"There is no need to go back to the bicam because we will fail to agree anyway so (we should) allow for political consolidation to take place," he said.

It was not clear why the senators did not want to resolve the deadlock at the bicam, which is the venue for reaching compromises, and seek presidential intervention in the face of the doctrine of separation of powers.

Recto said it was possible to state the conditions under which the President can raise the VAT rate in the VAT measure itself.

He said the National Internal Revenue Code gives the President the power to raise the tax rate, by changing the system of taxation from net to gross.

Sen. Joker Arroyo, one of the VAT hardliners, said the Senate panel decided to stick to the chamber's version because its members "fear [a] public backlash."

He said the senators would not want to lose face by changing its unanimous decision to maintain the VAT at 10 percent and lift exemptions to widen the tax base to raise enough revenues.

But he said the panel had yet to arrive at a consensus because some members worry about going against the President's wishes.

Recto revealed that there was "very extensive discussion" of a fourth option that he had presented—that of maintaining the VAT at 10 percent but giving the President the power to increase it to 12 percent in a year or two under certain conditions.

He earlier presented three other options: 10 percent, 11 percent and 12 percent.

He said the fourth option could provide the "break in the stalemate."

"We have to move on. I suppose there is VAT-fatigue for everyone," Recto said.

He said he wanted to "explore" this option and he would in fact put it down in writing and consult the minority members of his panel.

"I am not really opposed to the standby (power) because I believe they can get their target revenue from 10 percent. If after one or two years, they could not achieve their target and they need to increase, it's up to the President. I think it is possible," Recto said.

Recto, who is said to have called the President the other day after it became clear that four senators were adamant at maintaining the VAT at 10 percent—yesterday said Ma Arroyo should intervene and call for her allies in the Senate to vote for a 12-percent hike.

He suggested the President should now step in and talk to her allies to support her position.

"Since it is important to the Palace to have 12 percent, they should talk to the members of the bicam panel to get 12 percent, right?" he said.

Former DILG chief acquitted of graft

THE SANDIGANBAYAN yesterday acquitted former Interior Secretary Ronaldo Puno of the graft charges filed against him by the government for lack of evidence.

In a 77-page decision, the Sandiganbayan fourth division presided over by Justice Gregory Ong said prosecutors failed to substantiate charges that Puno just wanted to "acquire a controlling interest" in Wattmaster Inc., Philippine dealer of Motorola communications equipment, when he withdrew his signature from the contract between the firm and the government.

The decision was concurred in by Associate Justices Jose Hernandez and Rodolfo Ponferrada.

The antigraft court further ruled that the September 1998 contract for phases 4 and 5 of the Multi-Trunked Radio System never took effect.

"The MTRS phases 4 and 5 contracts that Puno signed were, for all legal intents and purposes, only proposed or proposed agreements, not duly perfected contracts as erroneously alleged in the information," the court said.

Prosecution lawyers alleged that Puno signed the multimillion-peso Motorola deal with the Philippine National Police because he wanted to get a stake in the distribution of Motorola products in the Philippines.

The PNP in 1993 planned to upgrade its two-way radios to boost its campaign against criminality. This was to be done in five phases, the first three of which were implemented during the administration of President Fidel V. Ramos.

The remaining phases came due during the term of President Joseph Estrada. As in the previous contracts, Motorola was chosen to supply the communications equipment for the police force.

Phase 4 of the project was for the procurement of the MTRS in the National Capital Region and Regions III and IV. The procurement was worth more than P99 million.

Phase 5 covered Regions I and II and had an estimated cost of P49 million.

In acquitting Puno, the court said the failure of the prosecution to prove its allegation prompted it to grant Puno's demurrer to evidence.

These findings are a significant advance for the field because they provide the first evidence that the brain's ability to learn is not limited to the motor system. The authors conclude that the brain's ability to learn is a general property of the brain, and that the ability to learn is not limited to the motor system. This finding has important implications for the study of learning and memory, and for the development of educational programs.

Congress eyes repeal of Epira

By Michael L. Smith

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives today passed a bill to repeal the Epiri law, which was enacted in 1982. The bill, which was introduced by Rep. James H. Rogan (R-N.Y.), was passed by a vote of 218-197.

The Epiri law, which was enacted in 1982, required that all federal agencies must have a minimum of 10 percent of their workforce be composed of people who are 65 years of age or older. The law was enacted in response to a report by the General Accounting Office (GAO) that the federal government was not doing enough to prepare for the aging workforce.

The bill, which was introduced by Rep. James H. Rogan (R-N.Y.), would repeal the Epiri law and allow federal agencies to hire and promote people based on merit, regardless of age.

The bill was passed by a vote of 218-197. The House will now send the bill to the Senate, where it will be considered by the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

TABLE 1. Summary of the results of the 1990-1991 survey of the distribution and abundance of the 10 most common species of fish in the lower Chesapeake Bay. Species are listed in descending order of total abundance. Species with a total abundance of less than 100 are indicated by an asterisk. The number of hauls in which a species was collected is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses. The number of hauls in which a species was collected in the main stem is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses. The number of hauls in which a species was collected in the lower bay is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses. The number of hauls in which a species was collected in the upper bay is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses. The number of hauls in which a species was collected in the lower bay is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses. The number of hauls in which a species was collected in the upper bay is indicated by the number of hauls in parentheses.

Liquidating liberty

HOW CAN we expect to achieve a stable and prosperous future for our country if we continue to liquidate our liberties? The answer is simple: we cannot. Liberty is the foundation of a free society, and without it, we are no better than slaves.

The government has a duty to protect the liberties of its citizens. It must ensure that no one is arbitrarily detained, that no one is subjected to torture or inhuman treatment, and that no one is deprived of their property without just compensation.

When the government fails to protect these liberties, it undermines the very foundation of our society. It creates a climate of fear and uncertainty, where citizens are afraid to speak their minds, to exercise their rights, and to participate in the political process.

Liberty is not a luxury; it is a necessity. It is the only way to ensure a just and equitable society, where everyone has the opportunity to live and prosper.

The government must take immediate steps to restore and protect the liberties of its citizens. It must end the practice of arbitrary detention, it must stop the use of torture and inhuman treatment, and it must provide just compensation for those whose property has been seized.

Only by restoring and protecting these liberties can we hope to build a stable and prosperous future for our country. Liberty is the lifeblood of a free society, and without it, we are doomed to fail.

The government must also ensure that the liberties of its citizens are not abused. Liberty is not a license to do as one pleases; it is a responsibility. Citizens must exercise their liberties in a responsible and lawful manner, and they must respect the liberties of others.

Only by balancing the liberties of individuals with the needs of the community can we hope to achieve a truly just and equitable society. Liberty is a precious gift, and it must be cherished and protected by all of us.

The government has a duty to protect the liberties of its citizens, and it must do so with the utmost integrity and honesty. It must ensure that no one is in a position to abuse the powers of the state, and it must provide a fair and transparent process for the resolution of disputes.

Only by upholding the principles of liberty and justice can we hope to build a truly democratic and prosperous society. Liberty is the cornerstone of our nation, and it must be defended at all costs.

The image shows a document page with a header section at the top and several tables below. The header contains the text "Korea Electric Power Corporation" and "Annual Report 2000". The tables are organized into columns, with some containing numerical data and others containing descriptive text. The overall quality of the image is poor, with significant blurring and low contrast, making the specific details of the tables difficult to discern. The text is oriented vertically, which is a common format for certain types of financial reports or ledgers in some regions.

Gutierrez confirmed on time for China leader's 3-day visit

MANILA (AP) — President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo confirmed on Tuesday that she will meet with Chinese President Hu Jintao during his three-day visit to the Philippines. The meeting is expected to take place on Wednesday at the Malacañan Palace. Arroyo's office said the two leaders will discuss bilateral relations and regional issues. The visit is part of Hu's tour of Southeast Asia, which includes stops in the Philippines, Indonesia, and Singapore. Arroyo will also meet with other regional leaders during her trip.

Falun Gong members protest Hu Jintao visit

MANILA (AP) — Falun Gong members staged a protest on Tuesday to oppose the visit of Chinese President Hu Jintao to the Philippines. The group, known for its religious and spiritual practices, held a demonstration in front of the Chinese Consulate in Manila. Protesters held signs and banners, some of which read "in the Persecution of" and "Falun Gong". Police officers were present to manage the crowd. The protest is part of a larger movement to raise awareness about the persecution of Falun Gong in China.

The diagram illustrates the experimental setup. A participant is seated at a table, looking at a video screen. On the table, there is a horizontal bar with a vertical rod attached to it. The rod is connected to a motor unit, which is in turn connected to a power source. A video camera is positioned above the bar and rod, and another video camera is positioned to the side, pointing at the video screen. The video screen displays the position of the rod. The participant's task is to move the rod to a target position on the video screen.
